

ONLINE
5.4

Considering a Passage from Newsweek

There were many reasons that Americans believed Saddam Hussein had weapons of mass destruction. There was bad reporting and bad intelligence. But I suspect that many people believed the assertion because he was a bad man. And it was easy to conclude that a bad man will do bad things, even if there is insufficient evidence for one bad thing in particular. ("Personality, not Policy," Anna Quindlen 2004)
